Students came to Fairfax High seeking many things

In the

XXI VOLUME

of the

FARE FAC SAMPLER

we tell the story of 1956 Rebel life

*as we played and laughed and worked together
not so long ago...*

We can't be confined to these pages sense with us, therefore, the things we cannot show

LIFE, an amazing thing at the simplest, sometimes slips through our fingers without our noticing enough . . . Seniors say their good-byes . . . Underclassmen move into bigger responsibilities . . . And with blunt pencils and dog-eared pages, we live the present somewhat obviously, thinking frequently of the future dangling tantalizingly before us . . . Familiar words—"Let's do our Algebra after the game," or "Let's have a slumber party Saturday night"—become lost . . . And, suddenly, with a feeling deeper than sentiment, we realize that there will be no more "Let's" because there will be no more "us" . . . There is regret in the swift passage of time, in the mistakes made in learning, and in the things which must be left undone . . . Soon when the future becomes the present, we shall look back on the pleasant, unforgettable friendships, on the work which has been done, and on the days and months which have made this year in our lives . . . NOT SO LONG AGO.

Not so long ago . . .

Knowledge was within reach of all

Gay moments will never be forgotten

1956...

An accumulation of six weeks, report cards, dances, committees, and friendships—a year to recall as "one of the best years of our lives!" . . . The dread of tests and ring of early morning alarm clocks will be forgotten then . . . Time makes many changes . . . Students will come and go . . . But for us Fairfax High will always be the same—the same as it was when we laughed and learned together . . . We grew this year . . . Some grew wise; others, foolish . . . Yet we were bound together by a common love for the Fairfax High that was ours NOT SO LONG AGO.

The words and pictures of the 1956 SAMPLER help you remember that NOT SO LONG AGO you attended a Fairfax High that . . .

Was a personality, not a structure..... 8

Exemplified knowledge and guidance 10

Gave us five of our best years..... 22 to reach the top of the ladder..... 24 to become responsible leaders..... 44 to gain necessary confidence..... 52 to be recognized as a class..... 62

to explore new fields of knowledge 72

Offered more than books and homework 82

Promoted sportsmanship and spirit 110

Assured us of happiness and good times 142

We pledge in word and deed

Fairfax High School is a symbol of many things—a mixture of chalk and daydreams, adolescence and maturity, the development of the human mind . . . Some see it as a group of buildings, a structure of bricks and mortar; others, more fortunate, know it as a proving ground of personal worth—a blueprint for life, an institution dedicated to learning . . . It has taught us disappointment and frustration as well as achievement and success . . . As time passes, corridors and classrooms will become hazy recollections somewhat erased as the intangible goods of Fairfax High gain meaning.

Our school skillfully combines our dreams and ideals with reality and for this GOOD taste of life, we dedicate this XXI volume of the FARE FAC SAMPLER to our Alma Mater—Fairfax High School.

our love for Fairfax High

The Administration... has led us...is guiding still

We knew them as people eager to share ideas that would enrich our lives and thoughts . . . Their interests were not limited to our achievements at Fairfax High . . . They concerned themselves with our future—and changed our dependence to independence . . . We knew them and respected them as men and women who had already met and conquered many of the obstacles which we had yet to meet . . . Whether it be a confused participle-and-gerund situation or lack of a date for Saturday night, we always found an understanding audience . . . We saw them behind desks, cheering at games, chaperoning dances, spending after hours on school projects, and singing in our church choirs . . . Through all the trials suffered together daily, in the classroom and out, we earned the privilege of calling them our friends.

Turner Hudgins, Theodore Heriot, Hillis Lory, W. T. Woodson, Supt. of Schools, Stella Chapman, Sec. to the Board, Merton Parsons, and Samuel S. Solomon assemble for the first meeting of the newly elected school board.

Dedicated Believers in Education

Though we seldom see them, we knew they were always there . . . We found our needs abundant and our independence inadequate . . . They inspired in each of us the will to make our school continue to grow . . . In their attempt to reach beneath the surface and anticipate our needs, the school board's interest resulted in a successful Fairfax High School . . . The organization of this school is a tribute to their constant and dependable behind-the-scenes activity . . . We learned that it is to these people that we owe the smooth functioning of the school.

FACULTY

Mr. Turrentine and Mr. Fuller planned choral and band concerts, realizing that music keeps us happy.

The Short-Pants Club basketball team used their basketball talents to finance a senior scholarship.

We saw them not only in the classroom

Billy Lewis accompanied Mrs. French on her daily jaunt to the post office.

Misses Morgan, Winn, Swartz, and Middleton furnished cheers as well as homework.

Classes . . . found unity in Rebel spirit

We came and became a part of Fairfax High to fulfill our dreams or the dreams of our parents . . . We remembered entering the beginning of a new year . . . Where did the time go? . . . Just yesterday we were stuffing books into lockers, crowding to assemblies, doing last night's geometry in history, yelling ourselves hoarse at ball games . . . We rejoiced when it snowed, yet knew disappointment when it cancelled a basketball game . . . Spring came suddenly, making us tired of books . . . June arrived too soon . . . No matter where we go, life won't be quite the same as it was NOT SO LONG AGO . . . We felt changes in ourselves and realized that this change was growth.

Seniors . . .

realized that leaving was a part of finding

All for the last time . . . The time was too short to crowd into it all the things that should be said and done . . . We stood here on the brink of a new adventure—a conglomeration of nervous, frightened individuals blessed with the name—the class of 1956 . . . We were people characterized by "split personalities" . . . One side concentrated on term papers and government notebooks . . . The other half, for the first time, seriously recognized our ideals, our daydreams of the past, as present desires that constantly urged us to believe that our tomorrow had suddenly become our today . . . We gave to you, Fairfax High, our best, and you rewarded our efforts . . . In a cap-and-gown environment, we received diplomas, shook hands, and suddenly knew that this was the end and the beginning.

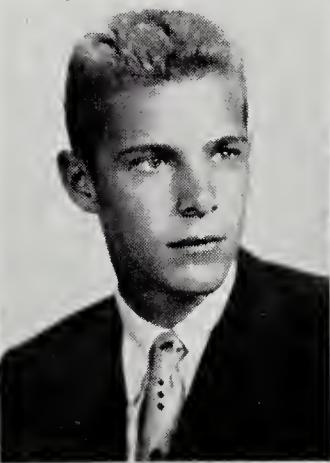

John Hall, pres., Joe Vogel, treas., Mr. Doub, sponsor, Sandy Riordan, veep, and Pat Hunt, sec., had many decisions to make as graduation loomed closer.

Sophomores . . . felt confident after having "been around" two years

Our second year of high school was not to be forgotten . . . We looked back on the foolish things we did and laughed . . . Then we remembered the worth-while things which made us proud . . . We conquered SILAS MARNER and JULIUS CAESAR . . . We tried our hand at thirty-five words per minute, choked on formaldehyde as we dissected fish, and became aware of our coming responsibilities . . . We liked being part of the "first assembly" group . . . Developing ideals, we found ourselves confused but more stable . . . Being in the middle brought friendship and security.

Freshmen . . . alternated between frolic and frantic study

We were beginning to mold the framework for our future . . . The past year had been an informative one, but we were looking forward, expecting greater things . . . Certainly we grew and frequently we could say, "Guess what I saw a little eighth grader doing?" . . . Not So Long Ago WE were eager eighth graders trying to make a good impression on teachers and upper-classmen . . . Then we became confident Freshmen molding our own impression into Fairfax High.

Refreshments sold at our Dime Dance added to the class nest egg.

Eighth Graders . . . felt a sense of belonging

Eighth graders entered Fairfax High and after a short period of orientation were soon undistinguishable from those of other classes . . . We were at the start of a new road looking hopefully ahead, not knowing really what to expect . . . We found something new here at Fairfax High . . . A list of teachers and classroom numbers were ours to memorize . . . We worked for the Christmas project and became super salesmen during the magazine drive . . . The variety of teachers and classrooms combined with one-way traffic and the Honor Code provided a new atmosphere for learning . . . Our ultimate goal, dim and uncertain at first, now shown brighter . . . So much more was ahead of us.

Head monitor, Dallas Clem, explained one-way traffic rules to Eddie Robinson.

We began to mold the

EIGHTH GRADE

After-hour activities . . .

found Fairfax High
in a different light

Scheduled meetings, practices, rehearsals, and deadlines were the daily reminders of the extras that kept school from being just an 8:50-to-3:20 affair . . . The fun, the applause, and the finished editions rewarded our efforts . . . Our projects got off to a wobbly start, jerked forward clumsily, and then, with a final lurch, sped to completion . . . These escapes from routine made high school life complete and changed our awkwardness to poise, and cocksureness to respect for real living . . . Our minds were more critical, our tastes partially formed, and friendships deepened . . . And all this we developed NOT SO LONG AGO!

Student Government regulated the

In all efforts, Student Government stressed the Code of Honor.

Tim Elliott led Student Government through another year.

New responsibilities were met with determination and were rewarded with a surge of confidence from the whole student body . . . We strove to keep our Honor Code an ingredient of our every endeavor—ever hopeful that common sense, decisive leadership, and enthusiasm could bring about the needed changes . . . Looking back, the students can say that '56 was a year of successful self-governing.

pace of High School Life

Mr. Dowling, one of Student Government's sponsors, met with Dick Keller, Treas.;
Karen Wagner, "Veep"; Elaine Eaton, Sec.; Tim Elliott, Pres.

Miss Tillett and Jack Purinton had fun playing the lifesaver game at the welcoming party.

Margie Bishopp spent Monday morning typing the "Who, What, When, Where."

Arleen Mueller read comic books to a little girl at Alexandria Hospital.

At Christmas the Rebels were seen decorating lap trays, fixing boxes of cookies and candy, and making plans to entertain children at Alexandria Hospital and old folks at Fairfax Lodge . . . Gifts and Christmas tree decorations were taken by members of Student Government, caroling as they went . . . We learned this holiday season that sharing with others was the way to find happiness for ourselves.

Student Government members played Santa at Fairfax Lodge.

Jack Williams, Chairman; Miss Story and Mrs. Berens, Sponsors:
Rosie Wilbur, High Salesman, totaled Rebel magazine sales.

Tim Elliott met with the newly organized Executive Advisory Council made up of the heads of the major organizations in school. Attending this meeting were Paul Hannah, Paul Spiel, Jinny Stein, Jo Chamblin, John Hall, Sherry Miller, Alan Ramsey, David Beckedorff, Susie Spindle, and Judy Mason.

Posters and politics paid off for Toby Baron, Scotty Mullen, Pat Jones and Gordon Cloney, the newly elected officers for '56-'57.

Karen Wagner and Arleen Mueller brightened teachers' desks with plants and gave school a friendly atmosphere in September.

Miss Morgan, Sponsor; Jimmy Stein, Editor; Gwen Dyer, Business Mgr.; Mrs. Hopper, Advisor, did some early scheduling.

Fare Fac Sampler... a life among the deadlines

Jinny knew that planning the layout was essential to a good book.

Their world was one of picture taking, ad soliciting, deadline worries, and rearranging once perfect plans . . . Layouts changed with the weather . . . Copy was written and rewritten . . . There was always something to laugh about and always people not too tired to laugh . . . Finally after a last burst of energy and inspiration, the result of one year's hard work was mailed to the printer.

Class editors, Sarah Firebaugh, Kathi Kemp, Sandy Riordan, Bob Lucas, Suzi Schwitz, Scotty Mullen, and Dennis Keogh, struggled to keep 1304 names with 1304 pictures.

Mary Cooley, Audrey Parsons, and Jean Tucker prepared copy for the printer.

Elaine Eaton, Frances Moore, Johnny Wood, and Pete King gave us an accurate record of athletic highlights.

Jeff Parsons, Photographer; Gordon Cloney, Business Staff; Sue Smith, Art Editor; and Nancy Boggs, advertising manager, knew that many Rebels judge a book by its cover.

Fair Facts covered J. H. S. with news and subscriptions

Cameras flashed . . . Hands and feet hurried . . . Brains ticked . . . They found good business in good writing . . . A rags to riches story, it could be termed, for the FAIR FACTS overcame its "bankbook blues" . . .

The staff looked on every issue as a literary masterpiece, for they had learned to abstain even from eating to track down a good story . . . News and more news, ads and more ads, pictures, editorials, and jokes—all for the price of a dime.

Jo fitted words into space to give us the news.

Janet Moyer and Linda Vierbuchen, advertising managers, turned ads and copy into Rita Knisley and Jack Williams.

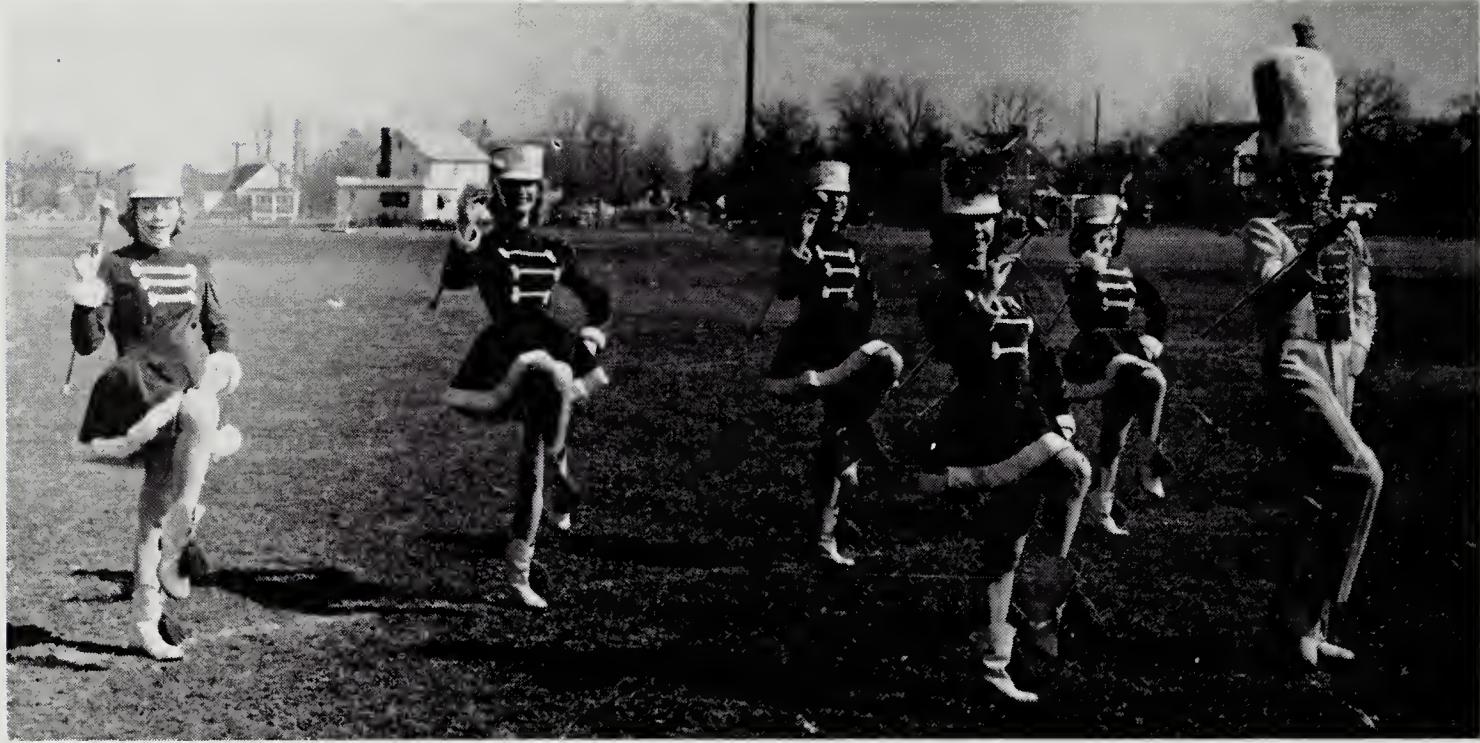

The editorial staff, Vicki Young, Priscilla Eure, Susan Overby, Carolyn Williams, Kay Merrell, Barbara Judd, and Betty Stephenson, entered the library on their way to the newspaper office.

Danny Clare and Jane Weisiger explained production procedures to Henry Laguillon, Carolyn Williams, Marguerite Krehbiel, Barbara Blanchard, Betty Stephenson, Frank Worthington, Judy Van Doren, Gifford Hall, and Nancy Koehlein.

Priscilla Eure gave pointers to reporters, Betty Stephenson, Barbara Blanchard, Linda Moore, Peggy Hoagland, Marion Wood, Gail Scott, Linda Loental, Mary Jo Vogel, Henry Laguillon, Gifford Hall, Steve Smith, Keith Scammahorn, Maggie Blanchard, Buddy Smith, Tom O'Flaherty, John Gant, Jared Cameron, and Frank Worthington.

Sara Ledford and Chris Branch led majorettes Pat Hunt, Beth Horney, Cynthia Moore, and Faye Remling down the football field.

Band...Blue and Gray on parade

Mr. Fuller and Chris scrutinized band formations.

They began their marching season dressed in old shoes . . . Bass drums were pounding as they marched through mud and grass . . . They were straining their ears to hear the instructions of Mr. Fuller and the drum majors . . . The majorettes' fire batons led onto the football field to help spur the team to victory . . . The Lane trip, parades, and football games all added to a store of good memories.

Early morning practice gained the attention of more than just the east-wing teachers.

Music was entertainment, learning, and enjoyment . . . In listening or performing each individual found satisfaction . . . Hard work went into each performance . . . Being a member of the band entailed more than just practicing and pressing uniforms . . . There were candy bars to sell, night rehearsals to attend, and parades to march in . . . No matter how good a showing was made at a concert, they knew they would still have music stands to haul back to the bandroom . . . Working toward all-state band was a common goal . . . Self criticism was possible through tape recording sessions . . . Other student bodies appreciated their talents when they traveled to near-by schools to entertain . . . Their participation in all outside activities from election assemblies to commencement exercises could always be counted upon.

Tom O'Flaherty knew that individual instruction and practice improved group performances.

Alan Ramsey, veep; Minna Wilson, sec.; Phil Rittman, treas.; Paul Hannah, pres., sought Mr. Fuller and advice.

Girls' Chorus... melody and harmony

Cindy Pearson, Librarian; Betty Oliver, Pres.; Ellen Linthicum, Sec.; Sandra Walker, Pres.; Judy Bowden, Sec.-Treas., of the fifth and sixth period classes, previewed new music with Mr. Turrentine.

They learned old classic songs and modern new tunes . . . A closely knit group that enjoyed entertaining themselves and others at assemblies and at the music festival . . . Efforts were repaid with applause . . . They will never forget singing in the FHS girls' chorus under Mr. Turrentine's direction.

FIRST ROW: Mr. Russell, Marless Schmitz, Abby Potter, Barbara Lenhart, Joan Baldwin, Janet Fiore, Patricia Henderson, Joanna Holland, Anne Parks, Bill Caldwell, Harold Baker, Bill Baughman, Burnett Russell, Jeff Herman, Carolyn Berry, Elizabeth Short, Anita Dotson, Barbara Fairchild, Roberta Roth, Rosie Wilbur, Barbara Frum, Ruth Ann McKeever. Eighth Grade Glee Club... fun, talent and achievement

This year they came to know a Renaissance to new music . . . They felt a growing pride as they introduced their own string quartet at Eighth Grade Night . . . Tennessee Ernie would have been impressed with their version of "Sixteen Tons" . . . Yes, this year FHS had an Eighth Grade Glee Club of which to be proud.

They knew that talent without practice was inadequate.

National Honor Society stood for the foremost in achievement

During rehearsal for induction Alan Ramsey, pres.; Elaine Scammahorn, veep; Carol Talbott, treas.; Rita Knisley, sec., took time out to talk.

They waited impatiently for their names to be called during the induction assemblies . . . Yellow roses and flaming candles were presented as symbols to guide them . . . Leadership, service, character, and scholarship were the qualities necessary for membership . . . Weekly devotional programs, the Easter and Thanksgiving chapel services, and the sale of Christmas cards for three scholarships contributed to a well rounded program at Fairfax High . . . Human endeavor and personal integrity reflected the honor of high scholarship . . . They found joy in their service to their Alma Mater.

Junior Honor Society sought principles of accomplishment

Warren Underwood, veep; Candy Love, sec.; Linda Clark, treas.; Susie Spindle, pres., met after the February induction.

Freshmen recognized as outstanding students, possessed with leadership ability, good citizenship, fine character, and service comprised the Junior Honor Society . . . Responsibilities didn't end with induction . . . Friday morning devotionals, selling Christmas cards, and chapel assemblies kept members busy . . . Eighth graders felt challenged to meet the standards and were inducted in June . . . Each activity reflected the responsibility and seriousness of purpose acquired by these students.

Miss Feusahrens, Sponsor; Sandy Walker, Sec.; Priscilla Eure, "Veep"; Betty Byrd, Song Leader; Barbara Foltz, Pres.; Georgianne Adams, Historian; Jill Jorgenson, Reporter; Rita Eckenrode, Treas.; Miss Billings, Sponsor, baked Christmas pastries.

As future homemakers they set their aims high...The experiences gained were not only beneficial to them, but the school, too, profited... They welcomed new teachers with a luncheon and later gave the faculty a coke party... Through hard work intermingled with laughter and fun, they attained their ideals.

Interest ran high in a growing Gens Togata Latin Club as they spent a full year of regular meetings, field trips, and parties . . . With Miss Cox as the guiding light, they eagerly delved into the mysteries of ancient Rome, the conquests of Caesar, Roman life and culture, and, of course, Lingua Latina itself . . . They embarked on a project to raise money for a future Latin scholarship . . . The banquet in March, accompanied by the swish of togas and scrape of sandals, highlighted a happy and successful year.

Bible Club exemplified moral and spiritual values

Sylvia Sorrell, Pres.; George Stewart, "Veep"; Nancy Thomas; Cindy Pearson, Sec-Treas.; Sylvia Rose, Reporter; Miss Cox, Sponsor, planned the Thanksgiving assembly program.

To be united in spirit and faith—this was the goal . . . Foremost in activities was the Thanksgiving assembly . . . Bible study and discussion made better Christians . . . Through weekly meetings of worship, study, and recreation they strengthened their faith.

Debaters spoke for themselves

The Debate Club lived up to the reputation they talked themselves into . . . Debate teams from all over the area found them gracious hosts as well as willing and capable opponents.

Chip Neville; David Beckedorff; John Hall, Pres.; Miss Bowler, Sponsor; Jack Williams, Sec.-Treas.; Danny Clare, "Veep", gathered material for a debate.

Science Club...experiences with experiments

They knew the field of science was wide . . . A Science Fair proved that . . . Through test tubes, magnets, and other gadgets of their own design, they found a satisfaction in exploring the deeper facets of the world around.

Janice Fullerton, Sec.-Treas.; Wayne Morrison; Anthony Powell, "Veep;" Mr. Mizell, Sponsor; Dan Miller; Warren

Bass, Pres.; Chip Neville; Carey Sweeny, Paul Shumate; Frank Entwistle, exemplified scientific interests.

FOURTH ROW: Walter Trumble, Marvin Roberson, Richard Nevitt, William Dove, Robert Ross, Jake Knupp, Richard Stover, and Donald Thorpe.

Performing their duties, the Bus Patrols stood out as able assistants from the beginning of the year . . . We recognized them as individuals who were willing to accept responsibility . . . Helping teachers, bus drivers, and students every morning and afternoon, they deserved and gained our respect.

Cafeteria workers satisfied appetites

Cherry pie, apple pie, coconut cream, pineapple—you name it and they were sure to have it... Imagine feeding a family of a thousand children every school day... For them it meant getting here bright and early, cooking and baking till afternoon, just to satisfy our ravenous appetites.

Mrs. Dove supervised kitchen activities.

Custodians covered up our carelessness

Cleaning, cleaning, cleaning—an endless job... We left old Fairfax on Friday dirty and cluttered, only to find her shiny as a new penny on Monday... Locking and unlocking doors in the wee hours with unending patience... Through their efforts we took pride in the appearance of our school.

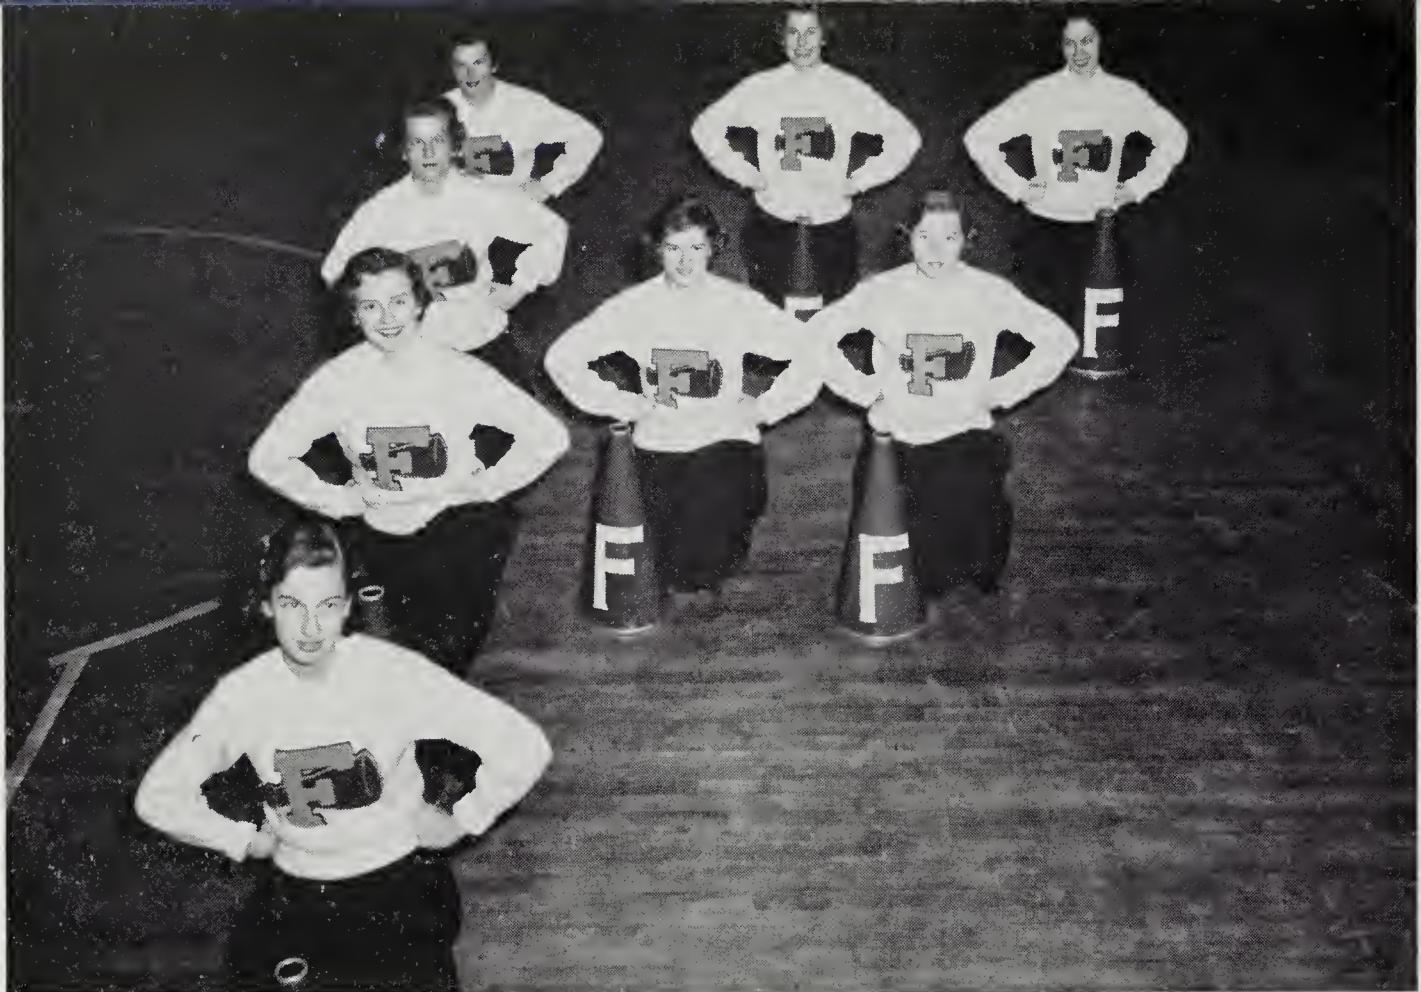

We called upon Mr. Whitmer often.

Ingredients of our Athletics . . .

*coaches and teams,
plus spectators and spirit*

Not all of us knew the pep talks in the dressing rooms, the hunger and weariness after a hard evening's practice, hockey stick bruises, fifteen-yard penalties, split-second timing as you slid into third base, endless laps around the field, or the triumph of a hole-in-one . . . But each loyal Rebel fan has known the thrill of a victory, the satisfaction of a game well played, and felt pride in our teams and coaches as we yelled "Hey, opponents, look over here!" . . . Crackling bonfires, horns honking in a cavalcade, the band stepping proudly to the beat of "Dixie" gave athletics something more than the traditional win-or-lose effect.

Phyllis Wilbur, Sandy Riordan, Carol Talbott and Margie Young, co-captains, Gretcher Furr, Jackie Keys, Kathi Kemp, and Jinny Stein form an F to kick off a basketball pep rally.

Enthusiasm, sportsmanship and pep

In their snappy new blue and white uniforms, they worked for better school spirit . . . New cheers, pep rallies, and a bon-fire added to the excitement of the athletic seasons . . . Win or lose they were still backing Rebel teams . . . A steak dinner at Gusti's concluded a bang-up season for them . . . The student body was always proud of their peppy smiles, their fighting spirit, their eager interest, and loyalty.

The auditorium was the scene of many football rallies.

Practice, faithfulness, interest, and spirited attitude was the J. V.'s motto . . . Their aim was to stress the importance of a good junior varsity program . . . To wear a varsity letter was a goal they looked forward to . . . Their endeavors were appreciated by all Rebel fans.

Inspired by the Cheerleaders

The Baby Rebels looked to these peppy gals for support and enthusiasm . . . With only a short time to learn Rebel yells, they worked hard and succeeded . . . The Eighth grade was well represented by these energetic cheerleaders.

FIRST ROW: Ruth Ann McKeever and Judy Hipple, Co-captains. SECOND ROW: Rosalind Whitney, Carol Vierbuchen, Shirley Krebbs, Lyndle Eaton, Lizzie Kemp, Judy McIntyre, Sandy Welton.

FIRST ROW: Mr. Waller, Sponsor; Rick Oliver, President; Sammy Ellis, "Veep"; Barry Clark, Sec.-Treas.; Danny Hubbard, Sgt.-at-Arms; Mr. Pulliam, Sponsor. Varsity Club brought lettermen together

Ellis and Whitmer led Varsity Club recruits King, Johnson, Wood, and Wyckoff in a few Christmas carols.

After a two-year interruption, the Varsity Club reorganized . . . A constitution added efficiency and importance to the club . . . A hilarious initiation kept recruits on their toes . . . With each awards assembly, their ranks grew . . . A joint project with the Monogram Club brought about a boy-girl basketball game . . . They were admired for their contributions to Varsity sports.

Proud possessors of Varsity "F's" banded together . . . Initiation for new members provided much fun . . . Basketball games between boys and girls brought out a crowd . . . Tootsie Pops made a hit and also brought in money for the club . . . Bowling parties, swimming parties and meetings at the homes of some of the members added to the year's activities . . . Proud faces and a feeling of accomplishment made them feel their second year had been a success.

From the sweltering August days to mid-November, the team sharpened its offense and defense . . . A rough schedule confronted a determined team . . . The climax of the season was another decisive victory over Falls Church . . . Victories were taken in stride and defeats were brightened by the satisfaction from sincere efforts . . . The season ended with a cherry pie feast.

Coaches Pulliam and Helmbreck covered new plays with Captains Dan Hubbard and Joe Sheaffer.

Hockey made athletic headlines

Coaches Thomas and Swartz give Captains Betty Stephenson and Karen Wagner a little time-out advice.

Fall saw the hockey team practicing diligently . . . A scramble for hockey sticks, goalie masks, and shin guards kept the team room in chaos . . . The jolting bus rides did nothing for their pre-game butterflies at away games . . . A terrific season rewarded their willingness to work . . . The season not only improved skills, but new friends were made and old friendships strengthened . . . Sportsmanship was stressed for they knew teamwork was more important than individualism . . . Knowing they had played their best was more important than winning.

Half-time found them tired and in need of a rest . . .
The oranges were mighty good.

J. V. Baseball team practiced for tough season

Catcher Gibson is seconds late, and Coach Helmbreck calls the man safe at home plate during practice.

The boys went out for baseball because they enjoyed the game not just for fresh air and exercise . . . They worked hard to perfect their batting style . . . Competition was stiff, but Rebels never said "die."

Eighth Grade Baseball team trained Rebel Rookies

Eighth graders proved that it was practice and not experience that developed a good team . . . They learned what it was to have sore muscles and aching limbs . . . They worked untiringly for a successful team.

Coach Keller gave them special instructions before their first game.

Varsity Softball record recalled an alert team

Co-captains, Frances Moore and Kay Merrell, view season's schedule with Coach Duesterdick.

A big turn out opened the season's training . . . Between rain and cold winds practices were held . . . Bad weather found them hard at work in the gym . . . Sore muscles and high spirits characterized a winning team.

J. V. Team hit stride during '56 season

Lyndle Eaton and Judy Bryan, co-captains, get a lesson in catching from Coach Waters.

For the first time in F. H. S. athletic history, eighth graders participated in J. V. softball and supplemented upperclassmen's abilities . . . Knowing that practice made perfect, the girls spent time teaching and sharing their skills . . . Here was an encouraging factor for the varsity coach.

Track Team dashed to victory

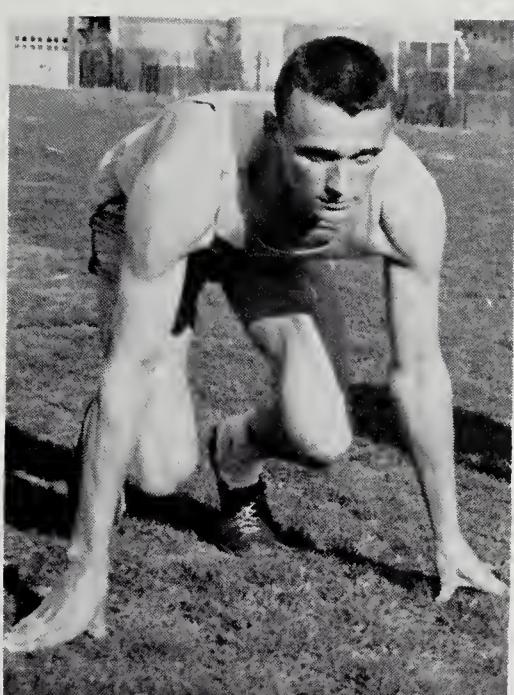

Coaches Waller and Coyle discuss the team's chances in Saturday's meet with co captains, Sammie Ellis and Paul Spiel.

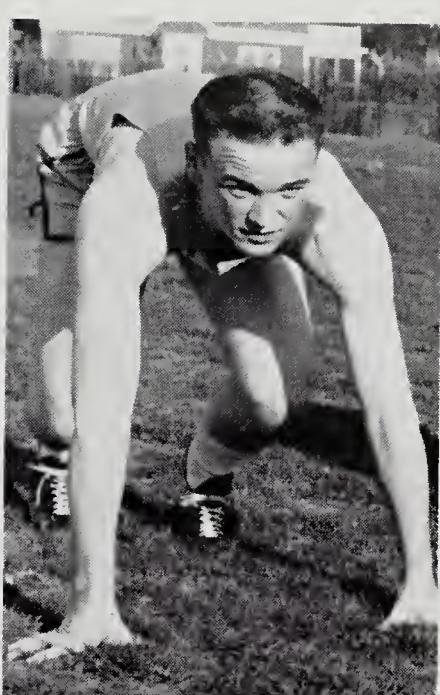

The track team dodged fly balls as they jogged around the baseball diamond during spring training . . . They got in shape for everything from the 100 yard dash to the mile run . . . High and low hurdles were taken in stride . . . They earned their share of points in all the meets and forgot the cold suppers after late practices . . . While they had their share of disappointments, the work that they put into training gave to each a sense of satisfaction in knowing that he had done his best . . . If training continued, unlimited goals would be attained.

We cite as features . . . extras that made the big moments and the memories

Social affairs also came in for their share, with parties, dances, dates, and movies taking a good chunk out of week ends and sometimes week days as well . . . Our good times were important to us because they gave us a proper balance between work and play . . . Homecoming saw the gym decorated for the first time in the fall . . . The Sadie Hawkins Dance made Leap Year realistic . . . The Snow Ball, Sweetheart, and Prom furnished us with pleasant excitement as the girls spent hours getting ready and the boys pretended nonchalance . . . As time passed, spring proved that a girl's fancy was not so different from a boy's . . . Each incident was valued as it gained its proper place . . . What did 1956 mean to you? . . . Maybe it was the memory of a tune played on a juke box . . . Perhaps it was those last moments before Mom and Pop began to worry on a Saturday night . . . Or could it be a mental picture that brings happiness to recall?

Homecoming . . . a weekend

Dave Berry chauffeured the hopeful candidates onto the field at halftime.

Barbara Judd, the tired but happy Homecoming Queen, relaxed after a night to remember.

Six pretty seniors shared the spotlight during Homecoming . . . A lovely queen was joyfully surprised as she was crowned and presented with flowers . . . Congratulations and applause, combined with music and dancing, added to a memorable occasion.

The Homecoming Court, Carol Talbott, Gwen Dyer, Paulia Breedlove, Sue Scheffel, and Margie Young, gaily talked of the big dance.

of Anticipation and Fun

The bon-fire brought out Rebel fans for a huge rally.

Mr. Waller and Miss Morgan, Lord and Lady Fairfax, were introduced with Jinny Stein and Joe Sheaffer, Peppy and Johnny Rebel, at the rally after their election.

The band's fanfare brought the Varsity Rebels onto the gridiron.

The bon-fire and pep rally proved a tremendous kick-off for the homecoming events . . . Every Rebel was proud of the football team's smashing victory over Falls Church in honor of the Queen . . . Truly one of the year's outstanding activities.

Juniors came "Down to Earth"

Tony Phillips, Suzi Schwitz, Mickie Kelly, Barry Clark, Linda Vierbuchen, Lester Bennefeld, Gordon Cloney, Sylvia Barron, Phillip Rittman, Karen Vadney, Shirley Lytton, Marilyn Stevenson, and Dennis Keogh.

The Backstage crew found building a house no easy task.

Counting laughs backstage, becoming grey-haired overnight, and forcing lipstick and rouge on male members of the cast were parts of the hectic fun of the Junior Play . . . Satisfaction came in stepping to the footlights and hearing applause.

Pilone in angelic slumber . . .

The Snow Ball candidates, Sandy Riordan, Kathi Kemp, Jinny Stein, Nancy Koehlein, and Elaine Eaton, reigned over Christmas Festivities. Their escorts were Bill Wisner, Phil Rittman, Dan Hubbard, John Atwell, and Pete King.

Snow Ball

Christmas in Silver and Blue

Shimmering Christmas trees, soft music, and dim lights gave a tinseled glow to the Snow Ball . . . Five junior and senior girls shared the honor of running for queen . . . A Christmas wonderland put everyone in a dreamy holiday mood.

Mr. Coffey crowned a radiant queen, Jinny Stein.

Dancing to the music of the Dixie Kings was a delightful pleasure.

Charles Creutz, Karen Gilmore, Charles Ahalt, Gifford Hall, Dan Clare, Elizabeth Moore, Frank Worthington and Mike Bonnett stepped to the footlights for a bow.

Seniors burned midnight oil

They transformed the stage into a swank apartment.

A smooth performance climaxed six weeks of rehearsals . . . The glare of footlights, the confusion at the make-up table, counting laughs backstage, never-ending efforts to maintain quiet in the wings, and last-minute butterflies added to the excitement . . . The design of the set and collecting props and costumes contributed to the suspense of opening night . . . Satisfaction came in stepping to the footlights and hearing applause . . . Congratulations and autographing programs brought all seniors together at the party as the curtain fell on "Candlelight."

A lavish apartment set the scene for Prince Rudolf's and Josef's entertaining.

The Sweetheart Dance... a night with your Special Someone Pretty Sandy Riordan and gallant Wayne Powell were elected King and Queen of Hearts.

The Sweetheart Dance emphasized Valentine's Day with a hearts and flowers theme . . . A court of seniors were candidates for King and Queen . . . One happy couple emerged as the victors . . . The Queen was smiling and lovely . . . The King, though his embarrassment caused his face to match his red argyles, was quite debonair as he tried to grin and bear it . . . A happy time with romance and cupid in the air.

Dan Hubbard, Mick Bonnet, Jack Purinton, Joe Vogel, Gwen Dyer, Barbara Judd, Nancy Koehnlein, and Margie Young shared the limelight with the King and Queen as members of their court.

F. H. S. lost Chesley but gained Doub as competent and friendly advisor...

The faculty honored Mr. Chesley at a farewell dinner.

Mr. Doub's voice ended our school day and brought us up to date on news of importance.

We bade a fond farewell to our assistant principal, Mr. Emory Chesley, in March . . . His guidance and understanding saw us through many trying times . . . He will not soon be forgotten by the Rebels . . . We wished him happiness and success for the future.

Mr. Cyrus Doub stepped in as assistant principal . . . Already he had gained our respect and admiration through his many contacts with students . . . He sponsored the Senior Class, the Monitors, and Student Government during this year . . . The F. H. S. Student body is proud to have him and hopes he will find satisfaction in his new role.

Not so long ago incident followed incident pattern to be traced in its most Janis Rambo was fed snow during lunch period by Skip Spiel.

Sally Budlong found F. H. S. offered outlets for all interests as she dabbled in ceramics.

The juniors on the yearbook staff relaxed at the going-away party for Kathi Kemp and Dennis Keogh.

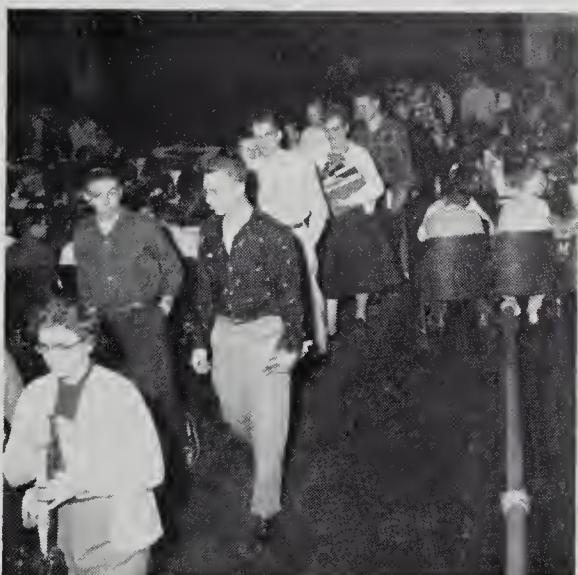

... and he'll go home and tell how hard high school work is.

exciting hours, in its quietest moments.*

At Christmas we learned to share our good fortune with others.

A senior's privilege . . . to leave the auditorium first.

A typical scene . . .
prepared for everything from a pep rally
to a slumber party.

The F. H. A. impressed us with the importance of Civil Defense.

This year passed in a succession of ideas and emotions to build

Print shop was always the scene of activity and interest.

Wrestling in gym classes taught physical and muscular control.

The Sadie Hawkins gave the girls a chance to do the asking and the paying.

episodes, out of which we gathered the the structure of our lives.

The Alma Mater as passers-by saw it . . . as we shall see it soon.

Bleachers in Memorial Stadium . . .

formed into an atmosphere of spirit, cheers, songs, laughter, and happiness.

Our Fairfax High beneath a covering of

Ask about our "All gas home"

We found the halls silent and filled them with laughter, the rooms empty and filled them with life . . .

The Rebels of '56 learned much from Fairfax High School . . . We learned to share ideas as well as lockers . . . Aided by its structure and traditions in which we placed our faith, our lives opened to the richness of spirit that made life here so full.
